There are some truly mesmerising wide-angle views in Scotland — one of them can be savoured from our restaurant, our drinks' terrace, our swimming pool, our lodges and from every bedroom in the Hotel. In Scotland, the hills and the lochs combine to create a special dreamy setting.

The light that plays on Loch Linnhe and the great hills of the Morvern Peninsula beyond, paints an endless sequence of colours through the day — blues, lavenders, jades, ochres. As the sun sets over the Great Glen, watch the sky rubefify and slowly turn to Prussian blue.

Warm, tasteful, refined—our bedrooms are places to relax and enjoy those fantastic loch views. Or soak in a deep, hot bath with a local whisky in hand.

On crisp spring mornings, when the waters of Loch Linnhe are still, why not wander onto the balcony of your bedroom and fill your lungs with the sweet air.

Or float in our pool, gazing out on the snow capped mountains in late autumn, before getting ready for dinner.

And then again, you might want to have a separate house with a few friends. Our waterfront lodges give you this privacy, while still being able to use all the Hotel's facilities. And the use of the swimming pool is free for those staying in our lodges.

The famous travel writer, H.V. Morton, wrote, 'Scotland is the best place in the world to take an appetite'. We agree and wholeheartedly work to maintain the reputation. Local seafood and shellfish are served in season and the local fillet steaks and other grills such as lamb and duck are a real treat, specially with a glass of Bourgogne. You can dine at any time of the day in our Captain's Bar (shown above), or take a table in our wonderful restaurant (shown on the right).

What a wonderful place our drinks' terrace is to glory in the setting and sip a glass of chilled Pouilly-Fumé.

From the Hotel and Lodges you are not far from the wild majestic mountains. A few minutes drive will take you to Glen Coe, where you could balance on the Aonach Eagach, or in another quarter of an hour you can be at the base of Ben Nevis. From Fort William you can ride the languid steam train through the mountains to Mallaig.

If you travel south, you will come to the beauties of Appin, and beyond that, Oban, where you can browse the shops, visit a pub, and hop onto a ferry for a day trip to one of the west coast's fabled isles.

Even closer, fishing is popular, and free, from the pier and the shore. We have good moorings and welcome the sailing fraternity.

I am one of those who always think it fun
to be in Scotland.
